

A4 format edition, square spine binding, handcrafted.

Catalogue d'artiste is an 80-page book that brings together a selection of my projects, both academic and professional. Combining drawings and photography, the connection between elements is created through playful layouts.

7 x 14 cm edition, spiral binding, handcrafted.

Données personnelles traces the lives of two individuals using only their digital personal data. These two characters, although different, ultimately face the same fate: committing the irreparable. This edition illustrates how the internet can lead to uniform thinking, fuel hatred, and sometimes result in deviant behavior.

The narrative unfolds through the book's design. Each protagonist has their own color and side of the book. The book can be read from both ends, guiding you through the story of each character via a series of screenshots and comments.

This project involved reimagining the Géovélo app, designed for cyclists. The first phase utilized Google's graphic guidelines to rethink the app's functionality. The second phase focused on completely redesigning four screens, creating a unique set of visual codes.

The idea was to develop a dynamic, engaging, and warm interface using a colorful palette and soft brown borders. This project provided an opportunity to become familiar with Figma and the principles of UX/UI design.

A1 format panels.

After months of renovations, the Fontenay-le-Fleury theater-cinema celebrated its reopening on September 13 with an inauguration. For the event, the municipality and theater-cinema collaborated to create panels explaining the renovation work and highlighting the key contributors to the project.

The panels feature the building's colors, staying true to its graphic identity. They also emphasize imagery, allowing visitors to clearly see the improvements made. A rhythm is created through typography sizes and graphic elements, establishing a visual hierarchy.

A4 poster.

The gymnasium rules were rewritten in a more positive and accessible tone for all ages. New rules, new design! This project introduces a more colorful and dynamic visual style, with playful typography to modernize the regulatory posters typically seen in gymnasiums. The goal is to make these often restrictive documents more appealing and engaging for users.

A5 notebooks.

Vie citadine is a series of two small A6 notebooks featuring sketches of public transport and advertisements. Through these drawings, the aim is to highlight everyday elements by focusing on often-overlooked details. Each sketch provides an opportunity to experiment with various tools and techniques.

A selection of photos I've taken, blending landscapes, portraits, and animal photography.

A curated selection of drawings, where I enjoy mixing mediums and tools.
